City seeks tighter regulations to stamp out potholes

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison City Council heard the first reading of a ordinance that will repeal a decades-old set of guidelines for protecting the city's streets, curbs and sidewalks during utility repairs and construction projects and implement more strict rules moving forward with permit processes, repair liability and inspections throughout.

The proposed Ordinance 9-2023 to Repeal and Replace Chapter 98 Streets Sidewalks Ordinance, will set aside regulations adopted in the 1960s and 1970s in favor of a more specific list of directives for contractors and crews who cut into city pavement, sidewalks and curbs while repairing or installing utility services and doing construction projects.

According to Madison Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee, when the city was prepping last summer for a series of repairs to Main Street from Jefferson Street to the top of Hanover Hill, crews repaired 180 road cuts that had been made in that stretch of roadway by city utility crews or their contractors, private construction contractors or private individuals. That's just one stretch of roadway in a city pockmarked by similar projects throughout.

The cuts have been made over a period of months and years and Rick Griffin, executive director of the nonprofit Community Resiliance Initiative in Walla Walla, Washington, was the keynote speaker at Wednesday's half-day conference in Madison to address Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs). The event, sponsored by Resilient Jefferson County, brought 170 people from throughout Jefferson County together to learn about breaking the generational trauma that leads to poor health choices, substance misuse, mental health issues and other life problems.

170 attend Resilient Jefferson County conference

BY BOB DEMAREE

An effort that began four years ago took a step forward Wednesday by bringing together 170 community members and leaders for a half-day conference that is by far the biggest turnout ever for an event hosted by Resilient Jefferson County.

Rick Griffin, executive director of the non-profit Community Resilience Initiative in Walla Walla, Washington, was keynote speaker for the event which addressed Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) — the traumatic experiences between the ages of 0-18 that lead to lifelong social, emotional and/or health problems for adults.

Efforts to create Resilient Jefferson County began with a planning grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. in March of 2019 and developed into an organization in early 2021 focused on helping Jefferson County to become trauma informed and reducing harmful ACEs in the community.

Griffin described a framework that communities can follow to help make a difference, using "KISS" as the acronym — K for Knowledge, I for Insight, S for Strategy and S for Structure. "When we follow the science and we have some knowledge, we also have insight into people which means we have strategies which means we have better systems and structures, and that's what this is all about," he said.

Griffin talked about how an overload on our survival mechanisms can lead to unhealthy consequences and noted there "is a medical consequence to constant stress."

He also said for as long as data has been collected, relationships are the number one protective factor. He cited addictions, teen pregnancy, high school dropouts and workplace violence as examples of problems that have been effectively addressed because of relationships. "No matter what the social ill, the number one protective factor has always been a relationship," he said.

"We need to get back to a finding a community that helps people build relationships," Griffin said, adding that's where there is a community resilience of a relational strategy in having a "common unity with you; that I've got your back and I'm there for you when you need it."

He said it's "when you feel

30,000 pianos and still tuning strong

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

If I heard my friends say it once, I heard it 20 times. You have to do a Charlie's Beat on Amos Plaster, the eight-fingered piano tuner!

"I was born that way," explains Amos, who was born, by the way, 89 years ago down in Letcher County, Kentucky. "I have four usable fingers on each hand."

To which you might be thinking, well eight fingers doesn't seem much of an impediment to piano tuning. You plink the notes with one finger while you turn the tuning wrench with the other hand. No big deal. But you don't know the rest of the story yet.

"When I was 14 years old I taught myself to play guitar listening to the Grand Ole Opry on the radio," explains Amos. "Back then I traveled from church to church providing the music for the services. Then in 1949 mom moved us up to Austin, Indiana, to work in the Morgan factory. I became the primary musician for the Church of God in Austin at age 15, playing guitar.

"Along about 1951, I would have been 17 I guess, Mom said time to get to work! So I took a job at U.S. Shoe as a shipping clerk. But I never stopped playing guitar. I was playing accompaniment for a professional accordion player, and I talked him into giving me a few piano lessons. He also gave me a piano tuning wrench. Those small things changed the course of my life.

Charlie Rohlfing

Musician and piano tuner Amos Plaster is shown.

"I took what I learned from his lessons and taught myself how to play piano. And I guess you could say I got pretty good. I won the Smoky Mountain Jubilee national keyboard award last year down in Gatlinburg. I've won piano contests, guitar competitions, there are trophies stacked up all over the house."

With eight fingers, remember?!

"But I also taught myself how to tune and restore pianos, and that set me on a totally new career path. I've been a full-time piano tuner since I was 33 years old, so that's 56 years now. I estimate I've tuned somewhere north of 30,000 pianos over the years, but I've lost count. Maybe much more than that.

"I've been tuning the 17 pianos out at Hanover College twice a year for 38 years now. There's an old one

Hanover funds study on park expansion

BY BOB DEMAREE

With hopes of expanding and developing Hanover Community Park into much larger and diverse complex, Hanover Town Council approved spending $5,000 to develop a plan on how to utilize approximately 12 acres of land currently owned by Auxier Investments that the town hopes to acquire.

The property is located west of the current Hanover Community Park, 200 Spruce Lane, and the scope of work study is intended to provide an architectural rendering of potentially how the land could be used.

With 475 youths registered this summer for baseball and softball leagues beginning play with an opening day on Monday, May 22, the most immediate need is additional parking. The park's existing lot near the Spruce Lane entrance often overflows during park activities.

"We definitely need a parking lot," Debbie Kroger, president of the town council, said.

Rick Schnebelt, the town's building inspector who has also been charged with the responsibility of overseeing park improvements, agreed. He said a new parking lot would "alleviate some of pressure we have now."

If the town is able to acquire the Auxier land, Schnebelt said initial work would involve developing a road just past the Hanover Township Fire Department, 419 West Lagrange Road, to provide access to a new parking area on the backside of the park.

There are also hopes to eventually use the property for future park development to provide more facilities but what that might involve remains to be decided and that is why a study is needed. "We don't know everything we're going to do yet," said Schnebelt, but there has been discussion of developing a new baseball/softball field, a soccer field and a building that would have an archery range, pickleball and a golf simulator that would provide a place for winter time activities.

However, the first priority would be parking additional development taking more time and resources said council member Kenny Garrett. "I would see a parking lot being there a couple of years before we get started on anything we want to build," said Garrett, noting it is all contingent on the outcome of the study, availability of funding and ability to acquire the land,

The $5,000 contract for scope of work will be with Building Analysis Services, owned and operated by Josh Kunze of Hanover. The money will come from the town's American Rescue Plan dollars that had been earmarked for the park.

Hanover Town Council has stated its hopes that the

Johnson retiring as minister of First Christian

Sunday's service is his last at the church

BY BOB DEMAREE

Becoming the pastor of a church in Madison, Indiana, wasn't something at the forefront of Bill Johnson's mind more than 10 years ago but that's where his faith and life led him.

"If you listen to my story, you can see that I never had a plan, I just do what's in front of me," said Johnson. "Some people are fortunate that they know what they want to do, and they do it. I never was that person. An opportunity opens up, you pray about it and go forward."

This Sunday will be Johnson's last service as pastor of First Christian Church after nearly 9-1/2 years. He's retiring and soon will be moving to Indianapolis with his wife, Julia, to be closer to their grandchildren.

"We are not leaving Madison because we don't like Madison. If we didn't have grandchildren in Indy we wouldn't be moving back to Indy," he said.

Before Johnson was hired as pastor, he had never been to Madison. But it didn't take him long to become attached to the community and its people. He began at the church in December of 2013, and remembers he and Julia going to the Ohio Theatre that month to watch the movie, "It's a Wonderful Life."

At the time they were living in a rental house on Third Street near Broadway Street, and Johnson remembers leaving the theatre, and going out in the dark of night with holiday lights on the buildings and snow falling during the walk home. "I said, 'I think we're living in Bedford Falls' — it was so charming. It's easy to fall in love with Madison."

Bob Demaree

Bill Johnson will hold his last service as pastor of First Christian Church in downtown Madison on Sunday after nearly 9-1/2 years. He's retiring and he and his wife, Julia, will be moving to Indianapolis to be closer to their grandchildren.

Johnson came to Madison as a transitional pastor for First Christian Church and plans to stay for a year. There was a possibility that he might be hired as pastor, but it was not a certainty.

By the summer of 2014, it seemed like the congregation would want Johnson to stay — the membership in fact did — and Johnson became more than just a pastor to First Christian Church. "My approach to local church ministry is that I'm a minister to Madison, not just this church, and this congregation likes that. So, I can be supportive of neighbors and other people in the community and not recruit them for membership. I can be supportive of people on their journey," he said.

In 2014, Johnson joined the board for Habitat for Humanity in Madison for a three-year term. During his time in Madison, he has also served on the city's Human Relations Commission, Friends of Lanier board, Schroeder Foundation Endowment Fund board and the RSVP advisory board. He is also a member of the Clifty Falls chapter of Sons of the American Revolution and the Rotary Club. He's served as president and treasurer for the Greater Madison Ministerial Alliance.

When Johnson became pastor at First Christian Church, the church was dealing with a $60,000 debt for repair of the steps in front of the building, a $100,000 project. "They're beautiful but they're limestone" and salting them during the winter can cause damage to the steps.

Johnson said the church dealt with that debt and got on better financial footing. "We figured out what problems were there, tightened up belts, people responded, and after some time you have funds," enough for the church to meet its own needs and also contribute $70,000 toward building a Habitat for Humanity house that was completed in the spring of 2022.

"Because we saved money, half came out of our budget, and we raised the second half," Johnson said. "It was kind of touching that people trusted the church so much that they wanted to support" the construction of the Habitat for Humanity home. "Even if they didn't know Habitat, they knew this church, and had a good love for this church."

A native of Evansville, Johnson has dealt with challenges in his ministerial journey. In his 20s, he walked with a cane after being diagnosed with Psoriatic arthritis. He has also been challenged with dyslexia. His problems with walking went away during a church retreat, something he said he still cannot explain. He's also found ways to deal with his dyslexia.

In his earliest years in the ministry, Johnson worked with youth including a stint at St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Indianapolis, where he met his wife and they were married in 2005. For another five years in the early 2000s, he managed House Cafe and Music, a non-profit supported by 13 churches and six denominations in Indianapolis. A couple of years before coming to Madison, he was chaplain at three different hospitals in central Indianapolis.

After a life in the ministry, Johnson is now moving into retirement. Will Jewsbury, who was senior pastor at First Christian Church in Kokomo for 17 years and now lives in Clarksville, Indiana, will serve as interim pastor at First Christian Church through July.

Johnson said he will miss First Christian Church, its members and Madison. "We've made some wonderful friendships here," he said. "This congregation has delightful people. We will miss them very, very much."

Overall, Johnson feels good about his time in Madison. "There's always stuff you could do and didn't do. I don't know if there's any position that I have ever left that I felt I was done, and to me that's part of the cycle of things," he said. "But I am very proud of the work we've accomplished together there. I feel pretty good about everything."

Age, health, death and/or just prudent thinking often prompts the need to examine financial assets and property ownership. How to best use and distribute those resources to accommodate and protect the future, as well as reflect personal wishes, is extremely important. Too often, decisions come too late or create problems because they were based on hearsay, assumptions or misconceptions, not law. Attorney Lora Mount, who specializes in elder law/estate planning, will cover basics, plus address those areas that often cause avoidable conflicts. To prepare amenities, reservations are necessary.

In 1976, clinical trials of the swine flu vaccine began in Washington, D.C.

PIANOS

out there I've tuned 40 times, just that one piano!"

When I asked Amos what brand of piano is the best, based on his trained ear, he said Chickering & Sons, which were made in Boston from 1823 until 1983. "I found a Chickering grand in Dupont one time I could have bought for $450, but it was just too large to fit in my home. The Shrine Club in North Vernon bought it and I rebuilt it for them."

Speaking of Amos' trained ear, I asked him what tools he uses for piano tuning. "I have a tuning fork for middle C, and I still have that tuning wrench the accordion player gave me. That's all I carry. I adjust middle C to the fork, and I use my ear to tune the rest of the keys."

Amazing.

Will Your Student Loan Debt Last into Retirement

"Layin' it on the line"

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Student loan debt is a growing problem in the United States, with many people struggling to pay off their loans well into their retirement years. According to a report from the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB), the number of older Americans with student loan debt has quadrupled over the past decade, with over two million people aged 60 and over holding student loan debt. This trend has serious implications for older Americans' financial security and wellbeing.

One of the main challenges facing older Americans with student loan debt is the impact on their retirement savings. Many people who are still paying off student loans may not be able to contribute as much to their retirement savings as they would like, leaving them vulnerable to financial insecurity in retirement. Moreover, some older Americans may have to continue working well into their retirement years to pay off their student loans, which can be physically and emotionally challenging.

Additionally, student loan debt can impact older Americans' access to credit and other financial products. Many lenders may be reluctant to extend credit to people with high levels of debt, which can limit older Americans' ability to obtain credit cards, mortgages, and other financial products. This can have serious implications for their ability to purchase homes, cars, and other assets and impact their overall financial wellbeing.

Older Americans with high levels of debt may be more likely to delay or forego medical treatment or other essential services due to financial constraints. This can seriously affect their health and wellbeing and lead to higher healthcare costs in the long run. Moreover, student loan debt can also impact older Americans' ability to access healthcare and other essential services.

There are several strategies that older Americans with student loan debt can use to manage their debt and protect their financial security. One of the most important is to explore options for loan forgiveness or other forms of relief. Depending on the type of loan and the borrower's circumstances, loan forgiveness or discharge options may be available, which can help reduce or eliminate the debt burden.

Moreover, older Americans with student loan debt can explore options for refinancing or consolidating their loans. By consolidating their loans, borrowers may be able to obtain a lower interest rate and reduce their monthly payments. Additionally, refinancing may be an option for borrowers with good credit who are able to obtain a lower interest rate.

Another strategy for managing student loan debt is to prioritize payments and create a budget. By prioritizing loan payments and creating a budget, borrowers can better manage their finances and ensure that they are making progress in paying off their debt. Moreover, older Americans can work with financial advisors to explore other strategies for protecting their financial security, such as investing in retirement accounts or exploring other income sources.

In conclusion, student loan debt is a growing problem for older Americans, with serious implications for their financial security and wellbeing. However, there are several strategies that older Americans can use to manage their debt and protect their financial security. By exploring options for loan forgiveness or relief, refinancing or consolidating loans, prioritizing payments, and working with financial advisors, older Americans can better manage their debt and achieve greater financial security and wellbeing in retirement.

POTHOLES

some of the work has failed due to improper or insufficient backfills and repaving, leaving a rough surface for motorists and expensive repairs for the city.

Part of the problem is the city lacks well-defined regulations on who, when and how one can dig into roads and sidewalks or repair projects, how those cuts must be repaired and who decides if the work is satisfactory.

"Road cuts are everywhere and there are a lot of them," McGee said, noting that every block in the city seems to be blemished by improperly repaired road cuts that are now either "pot holes" or "speed bumps."

"We need to get control of it," McGee said. "We spend a lot of money on our streets and it breaks my heart every time I see someone cut into them."

McGee said the city needs regulations in place requiring anyone cutting into city right of way to notify the city in advance and arrangement for city officials to inspect not only the cut but the repairs at key points throughout the process to make sure the way holes are dug out and put back leaves streets in a condition that does not create problems for residents and motorists in the future and pass those costly repairs on to the city.

McGee noted the issue extends beyond just tearing up expensive roads and leaving drivers dodging and holes and bumps. Damage to infrastructure like curbs, gutters and crosswalks impacts those who rely on them to function and could even result in violations of the Americans With Disabilities Act.

The process would require permits and fees and inspections to monitor the work as well as performance bonds to warranty the quality for at least one year. The regulations would be spelled out on the city's website with applications Online and by visiting city hall with permit processes included on the city's web-based OpenGov site (madisonin.viewpointcloud.com/) for easier access and scheduling.

"This would put a stop to future damages that will occur since our roads are so expensive," Mayor Bob Courtney said.

The ordinance received a first reading on Tuesday and should be back on the agenda at the city's next meeting for a second reading and public hearing.

In other business:

• Courtney issued the oath of office to three new police officers including Jordan Blakemore, Colton Fox and Cody Short.

• Approved a resolution adopting a Zoning map amendment re-designating 3910 Michigan Road, the site where a new fuel station-convenience store-drive through restaurant is being developed — from Light Industry to General Business.

• Approved Courtney's appointment of Mike Estes to the Madison Port Authority and City Council's appointment of Jim Bartlett to the Visit Madison Inc. board.

• The Council held the second and third readings of an ordinance establishing a Nonreverting Fund for READI Grant funding and held the second reading but delayed a third reading and adoption of ordinances establishing a Nonreverting Fund for Public Arts Commission and a Nonreverting Fund for Economic Development.

• Heard appreciation from neighbors in the area of Mulberry, First and Second streets for improvements in the number of drivers who are speeding and peeling tires in that area during the early morning hours.

However, the neighbors also noted that speeding and disregarding stop signs is still a problem as is early morning partying in the city-owned parking lot in the 200 block of Mulberry Street where drinking alcohol —including a keg of beer — has taken place by people parking and partying with cans, bottles and broken glass and other wrappers and litter left behind the next morning.

The residents asked if a crosswalk could be marked at the intersection in an effort to provide a visual warning to slow traffic and that they would be willing to do the work.

"There are hundreds of intersections in the city where people are just disregarding the law," said Courtney, urging the neighbors to work with the city council's Traffic Committee and Police Chief John Wallace to address the problem.

McGee said Mulberry Street is on the city's list for paving this year and that milling, paving and crosswalks would be part of that project.

Councilman Curtis Chatham questioned why the city's anti-loitering ordinance isn't used to break up the partying.

The residents suggested banning overnight parking at the lot.

"Chief Wallace can step up the patrols there but the problem is not parked cars but the conduct," Courtney noted.

• Fielded an inquiry from Chatham concerning a recent announcement that some baseball and softball leagues at the Rucker Sports Complex have been canceled due to low numbers. Chatham asked if the city had contacted Hanover Parks Department to see if Madison's fields could be utilized by their programs since Hanover is currently experiencing record participation in its leagues.

Council member Karla Krebs, who serves on the city's Parks Board, said there are still T-Ball and men's softball teams using the fields at Rucker as none of those programs were canceled and golf lessons, pickleball, T-Ball lessons and swim lessons also are still taking place in department this summer.

property will be donated by Auxier Investments. The scope of work is part of the process that the Auxiers want to ensure the land will be wisely utilized. However, Schnebelt said the scope of work will also provide an opportunity "so the community can see it, and see our ideas."

Auxier Investments is a partnership that includes Warren Auxier and three brothers. In contacting Warren Auxier on Wednesday, he said there have been "private discussions with Hanover for some time" for the approximate 12 acres of land that abuts the park.

Auxier said he wants assurance about what the town will do. "I have been adamant that before we would discuss going any further with the ground, they needed to have a good vision for how the ground was going to be utilized and what they were going to put there," he said.

He said drainage needs to be addressed to be certain that's done correctly along with determining road access, funding sources and ongoing maintenance.

Auxier said even more detail could be warranted beyond the scope of work, but that the study would be a good starting point towards determining those things. "You've got to start first and have some understanding," he said.

In other business:

• Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan addressed the town council about adopting the Multi-Hazard Mitigation Plan that was approved by the Jefferson County Commissioners at its April 6 meeting that also needs approval from all incorporated communities in Jefferson County by June 1 in order to maintain eligibility for federal grant funding. Morgan said the plan is typically updated every five years. The town council plans to consider adoption of the plan in May.

• Garrett offered condolences to the family of Duane Miller on his death April 6. "He was a great guy in our community," Garrett said of the 51-year member of the Hanover Township Fire Department. "He was a great father, helped out in the community," consistently providing help with Party in the Park, "grilled out thousands of hot dogs and hamburgers for us. He will certainly be missed by us as well as the community, and obviously from his family."

• Announced that town hall will be closed all day on Friday, April 21 and until noon on Monday, April 24 for remodeling. While the office is closed, residents can utilize the drop box for utility bill payments or pay online.

• Th re-dedication of Rainbow Park will be noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 6. Upgrades were made to the park last year with the assistance of a grant from the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County.

you've got somebody there for you, and you have just one person," it makes an impact. "But what would happen if there's two? If there's 20? If there's 200? If there's a whole community, can you imagine what we could do?"

"We are actually wired together to help each other," Griffin said.

In addition to the keynote, there were four separate breakout sessions dealing with education, juvenile/criminal justice, medical and behavioral health, and youth serving agencies. There was also a panel discussion that included Jeff Bates, superintendent of Southwestern Jefferson County Schools; Dr. Teresa Brown, superintendent of Madison Consolidated Schools; David Sutter, Jefferson County prosecutor; David Woolpy, executive director of the Boys and Girls Club of Jefferson County; and Renee Johnson, Adult/Child and Family Services manager of Centerstone in Madison.

Sutter said he was impressed that the attendees at the conference encompassed a wide range of people and backgrounds throughout Jefferson County. "This is pretty awesome to look around the room, and look at who we have in the room. We have professionals in mental health, folks who work with adults and children, law enforcement, volunteers, people in education, elected officials; this is pretty impressive."

Sutter noted that "a trauma informed community and a trauma informed criminal justice system will focus both on the prevention aspect and the treatment aspect." He said that involves partnering with other entities "to prevent people from coming into the system, whether it's juveniles and adults, and what can we do from a treatment standpoint once they're in the system."

Bates said when a student displays behavioral problems, there's more to consider in addressing just conduct. "I think it's important as educators and a community in general that we are informed as to why our youth act the way they do, do the things they do, and try to learn what that environment is like at their home, and what they come from before we even think to teach them" the basics of education.

Brown said as schools work to help students to learn, there are other factors that challenge that process such as mental health and threat assessments "that we're dealing with at schools on a daily basis that interfere with our ability to do teaching and learning. So, for us to get to teaching and learning, we have to deal with the whole child, and for the well-being of educators and our students, looking at trauma informed care is a good place to start."

Bob Demaree

Madison Consolidated Schools Superintendent Dr. Teresa Brown (left) offers comments during Wednesday's half-day conference to address Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) as Southwestern Superintendent Jeff Bates listens. During her remarks Brown noted a student's mental health must be considered. "I think many times, especially in education, people will inaccurately say, it's because those kids are not disciplined." She said the problem could in fact be a matter of neuroscience. "There's a lot of brain-based research behind it" that indicates other possible factors.

Woolpy noted that his awareness of trauma informed care and its impact goes back 10 years. "When you have a child with an issue or a behavior problem," it is "fascinating for me to learn there's good reason for that, and it's all based on science. One of the things I have learned over the years is how it affects your brain, and it's real science, and it's not just behavior, and it has long-term effects."

Woolpy also said the impact of "supportive relationships" is vital. "You can't do anything with kids if you don't start with that ... there's good reason for that; there's good science behind it. And it's encouraging to think if we just keep promoting relationships with kids, and understanding where they come from, we can make a real difference."

Johnson said it's important to build knowledge, explaining that people look at "trauma in very stereotyped ways without realizing small traumas that happen in the children's lives each day that add up over time. It's starting with that language and knowledge of what is trauma, and how those little things actually can be pretty big in a little kid's brain, and what we can do to offset those things."

Johnson said she hopes the conference participants take away new knowledge and continue to build on what they've learned.

"These people in this room can be the force of change in our community by taking this knowledge and making sure you spread that and take it to the partnerships in your daily lives," Johnson said.

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Markus Burton has earned the top individual award in Indiana high school boys basketball.

Burton, a 6-foot-1 guard from Penn High School, has been named IndyStar Indiana Mr. Basketball for 2023 in online voting of media and boys' varsity coaches conducted by the Indiana Basketball Coaches Association and All-Star game director Mike Broughton. The announcement was made on Wednesday as part of the IndyStar Indiana Sports Awards program.

The Mr. Basketball result means Burton will wear the No. 1 jersey for the Indiana All-Stars in their annual series with Kentucky. The Mr. Basketball award goes to the top boys' basketball senior in the state. The Mr. Basketball and Miss Basketball awards are part of the IndyStar Indiana All-Star program that dates to 1939. The Miss Basketball award, along with the girls' All-Stars, was added to the All-Star program in 1976.

The complete 2023 boys' All-Star team was announced on April 4. The complete 2023 girls' All-Star team was announced on March 14. Laila Hull of Zionsville previously was announced as Miss Basketball for 2023.

Burton earned the boys' top honor after being named on 171 ballots submitted to Broughton in balloting that ran from March 14 through March 29. Xavier Booker of Cathedral was runner-up with 20 votes. Zane Doughty of Ben Davis and Joey Hart of Linton-Stockton each received six votes. Myles Colvin was fifth with five votes followed by Mason Jones of Valparaiso with three votes. In total, 16 players received at least one Mr. Basketball vote.

INDIANA MR. BASKETBALL MARKUS BURTON

A Notre Dame recruit, Burton averaged a state-best 30.3 points as well as 5.7 rebounds, 5.1 assists and 3.6 steals while leading Penn to a 28-2 season that included Northern Indiana Conference, Elkhart Sectional and Michigan City Regional championships. He converted 58.2% on field goals (348 of 598), including 42.5% on 3-point attempts (65 of 153) for the Kingsmen. He also sank 87.1% on free throws (148 of 170).

For his career, Burton totaled a school- and St. Joseph County-record 2,273 points as well as 533 rebounds, 512 assists and 329 steals while Penn amassed an aggregate record of 74-31 over his four seasons (10-14, 12-12, 24-3 and 28-2). He also holds the school record for points in a season (909 as a senior) and produced a triple-double of 14 points, 10 rebounds and 11 assists in this year's sectional opener against Elkhart on Feb. 28.

Burton is the first boys' player and the eighth overall player from Penn to be named an Indiana All-Star. Those chosen as All-Stars previously from Penn, all girls, are Jessica Reiter (2000), Lily Svete (2009), Alex Morton (2012), Taylor Lutz (2013), Caroline Buhr (2014), Camryn Buhr (2016) and Kaitlyn Costner (2021). Also, Penn's Kristi Ulrich is the head coach of the 2023 girls' All-Stars.

In going to Notre Dame, Burton joins Chris Thomas of Pike (2003) and Luke Zeller of Washington (2005) as Mr. Basketball honorees to join the Irish program. Burton, Thomas and Zeller are among 24 Indiana

Burrow, Bengals begin offseason workouts

BY KEITH JENKINS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Joe Burrow walked through the Cincinnati Bengals locker room on Monday with the same confident stroll he often displays on game day.

Burrow, sporting a headband, smiled and joked with his teammates. The two-time defending AFC North champion Bengals were officially back to work.

Cincinnati held its first day of offseason workouts on Monday, and Burrow led the way.

Less than three months after a 2022 season that included setting single-season franchise records for completed passes (414), pass attempts (606) and passing touchdowns (35), the 2021 AP Comeback Player of the Year looked primed to pick up where he left off a season ago.

"I feel good about Joe," fifth-year Bengals coach Zac Taylor said. "I see him around the building often times. I think he's got a great process that he goes through in spring time."

To help with that process and to better equip Burrow and the Bengals to get over the hump and capture the franchise's first Super Bowl win, Taylor and the Cincinnati front office added six free agents during the offseason, including four-time Pro Bowl left tackle Orlando Brown Jr.

The Bengals signed the unrestricted free agent to a four-year, $64.1 million deal in March.

"His size, No. 1, stands out to you," Taylor said of the 6-foot-8, 345-pound Brown. "He's got good athleticism and uses his length really well. He's a really smart player as well. So he's got a lot of things going for him that I think allow him to be successful. He's played on winning teams."

Brown comes to the Bengals after spending the past two seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs, Cincinnati's opponent in the past two AFC title games.

"It's definitely interesting," Brown said of now playing for the Bengals after defeating them in last season's AFC championship game on their way to winning the Super Bowl.

"Obviously being on the other side the last few years in Baltimore and Kansas City, it's definitely different. But I'm so happy, excited and blessed to be a part of this. From afar, you can tell just how special it is. Now, to be in it 10 toes, it's awesome."

Cincinnati also added another playmaker for Burrow in former Minnesota Vikings tight end Irv Smith Jr. In a coincidence, Smith's and Brown's fathers played alongside one another during their respective NFL careers in 1999 with Cleveland.

Taylor said he expects Smith to be the No. 1 tight end at the start of the season, filling the void left by Hayden Hurst, who signed with the Carolina Panthers in free agency.

"It's good energy in here. I'm excited," Smith said of playing for the Bengals. "Being here during OTAs, I just want to come in and learn the offense and get close with the guys, the tight ends coach, Coach (James) Casey and just get to work. New beginning, new journey. I'm excited just to be out here and play some ball."

Defensively, Cincinnati will add a familiar player in starting cornerback Chidobe Awuzie. The seventh-year veteran continues to work his way back after undergoing surgery on a torn ACL in November.

Awuzie started 14 games for the Bengals in 2021 and the first eight games for the club last season before suffering the season-ending injury.

"My ultimate goal is to become a better player than last year," he said. "I feel like I got a lot better each year. I don't want my ACL or any injury I've had to hinder that. I want to keep growing as a player."

Bengals' Mixon pleads not guilty to menacing charge

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals running back Joe Mixon pleaded not guilty Wednesday to a misdemeanor charge of aggravated menacing over allegations that he threatened and pointed a gun at a woman in Cincinnati earlier this year.

Mixon made his initial court appearance in Hamilton County Municipal Court, where bond was set at $10,000. He was ordered to have no contact with the woman.

A warrant for Mixon was initially issued in February but was dismissed the next day. On April 7, Cincinnati police announced they had refiled the charge "following the discovery of new evidence during the investigative process," but did not provide further details.

When the warrant was issued Feb. 2, a police officer's accompanying affidavit alleged that the 26-year-old pointed a firearm and told the victim: "You should be popped in the face. I should shoot you, the police (can't) get me."

The warrant then also said the altercation happened a few blocks from the Bengals' stadium on Jan. 21 — the day before Cincinnati beat the Buffalo Bills in a divisional-round playoff game — but included no other details about the circumstances. The warrant was dismissed in Hamilton County Municipal Court on Feb. 3, with the order saying only that the city prosecutor's office requested the dismissal "in the interest of justice."

Mixon rushed for 814 yards and seven touchdowns this season, his sixth. He also had 60 receptions for 441 yards, both career highs, and two touchdowns. In 2021, he had rushed for career highs of 1,205 yards and 13 touchdowns for Cincinnati, where he has spent his entire career.

Mixon was a second-round draft pick out of Oklahoma in 2017. Several teams said they passed on him because of concerns about his character after Mixon punched a female Oklahoma student in the face in 2014.

He was suspended from the Sooners football team for a year and entered an Alford plea, in which a defendant does not admit guilt but acknowledges there is enough evidence for a conviction. He received a deferred sentence and was ordered to perform community service and undergo counseling.

Today's Puzzle Solved

A man's choice to use a slur riles the family

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: At the end of an extremely long road trip, my fiancée, her 16-year-old son and I stopped at a noisy sports bar at 9:30 p.m. — famished.

As we waited for our food, I saw an article regarding a woman who was recently fired for using a slang variant of "the N-word."

I turned to my fiancée to recount the story, but instead of using the variant of the word I saw in the article, I leaned in and in a very low voice said the actual (offensive) word to her, never intending for her son to hear it.

When we got into the car, her son vehemently questioned why I had used the word. I was stunned. His tone and aggression were totally disproportionate to my action. I got angry because of his tone and told them.

My fiancée sided with her son.

She said his tone was justified by my saying the word in his presence (we are all Northern European, by the way).

I am a politically progressive American who has supported many Black candidates, worked for voting rights, and have many Black friends.

My fiancée has asked that I move back to my own house for an uncertain duration.

I have apologized for getting angry, but my fiancée says that the problem was that I didn't respect her son for standing up for his beliefs. She believes that I should have just apologized and ignored his tone.

Your thoughts? — Stunned Man

Dear Stunned: To be clear, it is possible to tell a story about a slur without choosing to use the slur.

I believe your choice to invoke this offensive slur (rather than refer to it in another way), was deliberate and terrible. And you knew that this would likely offend others, which is why you decided to whisper it to your fiancée.

A woman wants partner's permission to roam

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am a woman in a sexless relationship, which is also lacking in affection. We've been together off and on (mostly on) for 25 years.

Our relationship is just sharing a home which he owns, and I pay half of the expenses.

We can have a decent home this way, as housing is so expensive.

We are both recently retired.

I have spent the last 11 years trying to get him to be intimate again, and he will not. He says it's his ED and COPD. He has literally no desire to give or receive any affection, except for an occasional hug and a peck on the cheek.

I've given up and have a lot of anger over it.

Well, I met a guy in Vegas in 2009 and had the best sex ever. We have remained in touch.

He's on the East Coast and I'm in the Southwest.

The man I live with has also never wanted to get married and, now, neither do I.

I like being my own boss.

I want to visit the other guy, and he also wants me to.

I love the man I live with, as we have been together for such a long time, but I no longer feel "in love" with him.

I'm relatively young, healthy, and pretty.

I have a lot of need for physical intimacy and would like to have it again.

How can I tell the man I live with that I need to make this trip East before I die? — Time's Ticking Away

Dear Time's Ticking: You and your partner have settled into a mutually beneficial roommate relationship.

You should initiate a conversation with him, expressing your desire to travel on your own and perhaps pursue other relationships, while remaining in a friendly cohabiting relationship with him.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Community events and attending group activities could be high on your list of priorities now through the weekend. You may have an opportunity to make new contacts and widen your sphere of influence through friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your interests and plans can shift swiftly. Any passing suggestion could launch you in a new direction. A family drama might interrupt your plans, or a home-based project may become the center of social activities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You are down to earth and practical enough to weather any passing emotional storm. Someone might mistake your simple kindness for a flirtatious overture. You could get ahead without relying upon other people's help or advice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You may be indecisive about a purchase and could often feel like you straddle a fault line when money or possessions are involved. It may be difficult to gather enough traction to get a new project off the ground.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — It can be upsetting if someone arbitrarily changes the terms of an existing agreement without notice. If you look closer, however, you might learn that there are advantages to the alterations, making it a win-win situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You could be able to make the grade and win someone's allegiance because you are a straight shooter. Be practical and astute without taking advantage of anyone's weakness. Try to avoid making big financial purchases for now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Playful teasing can be fun in small doses. It might be easy to pique someone's interest but more difficult to turn it off if a flirtation threatens to go too far. Try not to take someone's impromptu comments too seriously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Enthusiasm may come and go. You have plenty of energy but might prefer to have someone else by your side to sustain your interest. This is not the time to start new projects unless you are prepared to finish them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You can fit in well when there is a group gathering thanks to your warm and friendly nature. Your well-intentioned willingness to try the latest techniques, however, may spark a controversy at your workplace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Spend more time with the people you love and trust or you could risk being swept away on a wild goose chase. It may be wise to put outspoken opinions and the launching of new projects on the back-burner for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Unique people with interesting ideas and unusual backgrounds could briefly pass through your life. When you are attracted to someone new, remember that some people can disappear as quickly as they appeared.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you remain in your comfort zone, there can be no reason to complain or explain. You could be congratulated for a job well done or receive a surprising invitation from a coworker. Focus on an impending family outing.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Refinement and good manners can work well together. You may have an opportunity to buy something of taste and distinction or to make an apology. You might make someone's day by asking for their advice or opinion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your friendly attitude makes it easy to fit into any group or gathering. Your understanding and compassion can make you willing to donate to almost any worthy cause. This might be an excellent day to make amends and mend fences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — This could be a fabulous time to meet new people or to circulate and extend your network of casual social contacts. A special someone might be in a generous mood and have something unique and different in mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Exercise good taste while you have it. Bring home something that suits you from a shopping trip. When you show your friends or loved ones that you are willing to compromise, everything can run more smoothly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Take a detour around disagreements by making apologies before they are requested. Your friendliness and generosity can function as a protective shield that guards you from some potential misunderstandings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You could make a wise decision about a major purchase or find a good deal while on a shopping expedition. Get advice from an expert or a trustworthy friend before signing long-term installment contracts that may come in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — There is a song called "Happy Together" that might be appropriate background music for any upcoming projects. Working as a team, you and a partner could get more accomplished than either one of you could do alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Join in and you can tune in. Seek out like-minded individuals who support your ideals and could provide you with some kindredship. Someone you hold in high regard might invite you to join their circle, group, or organization.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Indulge your senses by enjoying the best that life can offer. Rather than drifting along, taking pleasure in whatever comes your way, you might want to select more elevated experiences or options.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Find an approachable target for your passions. Once you set your sights on a lofty goal, you could have plenty of assistance and support from your family members. Trust in your common sense to navigate social and business activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Meeting someone halfway by agreeing to a compromise can erase a possible problem and could provide a solution. A partner or loved one might show their affection and regard by giving you a gift or being especially attentive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may be able to sense someone's moods and feelings from a distance, but be careful that it's not just projection. You might be too shy or too busy to participate so you could be rooting for your team from the sidelines.

GOLF ROUNDUP

Southwestern claims win over Shawe, JCD, New Wash

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Shawe's Eli Turner claimed low-medalist honors but Southwestern scored the team win in a four-way golf match at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover on Wednesday.

Madison returns to action on Monday when it competes at Henryville.

Turner, Shawe's lone golfer, shot a 41 to edge Southwestern's Adam Boley and Jac-Cen-Del's Sam Scwering by one stroke.

But Boley's Rebels shot a 182 to beat Jac-Cen-Del by two strokes in the team competition. New Washington did not field a complete team.

Blake Boley followed his twin brother, Adam, with a 44 while Jackson Taylor carded a 47. Wayde Barker shot a 49 and Wyatt Barker a non-scoring 53.

On Monday, Southwestern finished second in a four-way meet at North Branch Golf Course near Greensburg.

Milan won the event with a 195 while the Rebels shot a 208. Jac-Cen-Del had a 212 and South Ripley a 219.

Wyatt Barker led the Rebels with a 47, Taylor had a 52, Adam Boley a 53, Blake Boley a 56 and Wayde Barker a non-scoring 63.

"We played well tonight despite some difficult conditions," Southwestern coach Matt Johnson said.

"I felt like we managed our misses well and succeeded in recovering and working to get up and down efficiently."

Southwestern hosted New Washington on Wednesday and returns to action on Monday when it plays at Rising Sun.

CUBS BEAT FLOYD

Landon True and Henry Ashley each shot 39s to lead the way for the Cubs while Clayton Benkert and Luke Barron both carded 40s. Jackson Lynch and Brayden Rockets each added non-scoring 42s.

Edey declares for NBA draft with option to return to school

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — National player of the year Zach Edey of Purdue has declared for the NBA, but will keep open the option of returning to school next season.

The 7-foot-4 center, who led Purdue to a Big Ten regular-season title last season by averaging 22.3 points, 12.9 rebounds, 2.1 blocks and 1.5 assists per game, has one season of college eligibility remaining.

The Boilermakers also became the second No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament to lose to a No. 16 seed last month. "My basketball career has been unorthodox to say the least, but I wouldn't change a thing about it," Edey wrote on Twitter.

"From ranked 437 in my recruiting class to national player of the year, I can't put into words what Purdue University, my teammates, my coaches and our fans mean to me. Though we fell short of our ultimate goal this season, I loved every minute of it."

He added: "I will evaluate my future after going through the process and look forward to what's next."

Edey became the first player from Purdue to win the national player of the year award since Glenn Robinson in 1994. Robinson was the No. 1 overall pick that season.

Edey is the first player in NCAA history to finish a season with at least 750 points, 400 rebounds, 70 blocks and 50 assists in a season — since blocks became an official stat.

He finished in the top 25 nationally in all four categories, was a unanimous first team All-American, the Big Ten player of the year and swept the national player of the year awards.

But where Edey fits in the draft is unclear in an evolving league that values 3-point shots and perimeter play over post players. That was one reason Edey's former teammate, Jaden Ivey, went No. 5 overall in last year's draft.

Most of the current projections, though, don't have Edey being selected in the first round.

Still, his upside remains high because the Canadian has played just five seasons of high-level basketball after giving up hockey and baseball.

Purdue has had at least one player selected in each of the past seven drafts, and Edey is the best hope to keep that streak intact.

In 99 career games, Edey has 1,533 points, 847 rebounds, 148 blocks and 106 assists.

In 2022-23, Edey became the second player in Big Ten history to lead the league in scoring, rebounding and field goal percentage.

Fourth defendant sentenced in fatal biker gang attack

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The fourth of five defendants in a fatal biker gang shootout on June 22, 2021 in Dupont has been sentenced to 15 years prison after pleading guilty to burglary with a deadly weapon in connection with the shooting death of fellow gang member Dustin B. "Kutter" Lindner.

Gary W. Fletcher

Gary W. "Mouth" Fletcher, 42, of Hamilton, Ohio, pleaded guilty to an amended charge of burglary with a deadly weapon, a Level 2 felony, and was sentenced by Jefferson Circuit Judge DJ Mote last week to 15 years at Indiana Department of Correction with credit for 872 days served and 10 years suspended for probation. He must still serve the balance of the executed sentence with a projected release date of March 29, 2025, at which time he will be allowed to serve his 10 years of probation in his native state of Ohio.

Fletcher and four other members of the Warlocks and Pagans motorcycle gangs, or their associates, were charged with organizing and executing an early morning attack on the residence of Shaun Rudis on John Deere Road in Dupont, whom they believed was impersonating a member of a motorcycle gang while not being a member, and then trying to cover up the crime by disposing of evidence.

Rudis fatally wounded Lindner, 35, of Georgetown, Kentucky, in the chest with a bullet fired from a .223 rifle when he returned fire in self defense. Three other defendants, including two gang members, were previously sentenced in the case.

Michael J. "Billy Goat" Karnuth, 34, North Vernon, was found guilty of murder and obstruction of justice with a criminal gang enhancement and sentenced to 120 years at Indiana Department of Correction; Jason W. "Dutch" Brewer, 36, of North Vernon, pleaded guilty to robbery resulting in serious bodily injury and was sentenced to 15 years with 5 suspended; and a female associate, Jordan M. Lowe, 27, now of Columbus, pleaded guilty to an amended charge of assisting a criminal-murder involved and was sentenced to four years prison.

The final defendant in the case, David Kenball "Karate Dave" Faulkner, of Cleves, Ohio, is facing murder, attempted robbery, attempted burglary and gang enhancement charges his jury trial has been continued to June 5 in Jefferson Circuit Court.

Greene, Reds agree to $53M 6-year deal

BY JEFF WALLNER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — A little over a year after his big league debut, hard-throwing right-hander Hunter Greene reached a long-term deal with the Cincinnati Reds.

"I'm fired up," the pitcher said Wednesday, a day after the team announced a $53 million, six-year contract. "I want to be in the forefront to returning to winning in Cincinnati. We have a lot of great players here and coming through the system."

Greene had agreed last month to a one-year contract paying $730,000 while in the major leagues and $350,000 in the minors. His new superseding deal includes a $2 million signing bonus payable within 60 days of the deal's approval by the commissioner's office and salaries of $1 million this year, $3 million in 2024, $6 million in 2025, $8 million in 2026, $15 million in 2027 and $16 million in 2028.

Cincinnati has a $21 million option for 2029 with a $2 million buyout,

"He's a talented player, but he's just as great off the field as well," said general manager Nick Krall, who attended a news conference with manager David Bell, Greene's parents and Reds teammates."We want players who make commitments off the field."

Greene's 2028 salary can escalate by up to $11 million and the 2029 option by up to $13.2 million based on from this year going forward: $200,000 for each All-Star election or selection, $2 million for any Cy Young Award, $1 million for second or third in the voting, $750,000 for fourth or fifth and $500,000 for sixth through 10th.

Greene would get award bonses or $250,000 for each Cy Young or MVP, $150,000 for second or third in the voting and $100,000 for fourth or fifth. Greene also would get $100,000 for each for All-Star election or selection, winning a Gold Glove or earning World Series or League Championship Series MVP.

Díaz HR sparks 6-run 1st, Rays beat Reds 8-0

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Yandy Díaz homered on the third pitch of Levi Stoudt's big league debut to spark a six-run first inning, and the Tampa Bay Rays routed the Cincinnati Reds 8-0 Wednesday to improve to a major league-best 16-3.

Tampa Bay pitched its second straight shutout and has six this season, more than half the Rays total of 10 for all of last year. The Rays tied for the most shutouts in a team's first 19 games, matching the 1876 St. Louis Brown Stockings, 1966 Cleveland Indians and 1981 Texas Rangers.

Tampa Bay tops the big leagues with 133 runs and has allowed 50, tied for the big league low entering the day.

The entire three-game series drew 31,794, including 10,205 for the series finale and 7,375 for the series opener, the Reds lowest for a home game since May 1, 1985, at Riverfront Stadium, according to baseballreference.com.

Cincinnati dropped to a season-worst four games under .500 at 7-11 and was held scoreless in consecutive games for the first time since three in a row in April 2019 against Milwaukee and Pittsburgh. The Reds totaled nine hits in their last two games, all singles.

REDS 8, RAYS 1

TJ Friedl drove in four runs, and Cincinnati beat the visiting Tampa Bay Rays 8-1 on Monday night after Reds right-hander Hunter Greene departed with a leg injury.

Kevin Newman homered for Cincinnati, and Nick Senzel scored two runs. The Reds won the opener of the three-game interleague series after losing 14-3 to Philadelphia on Sunday.

Tampa Bay lost for the third time in four games since its 13-0 start. Josh Lowe homered for the Rays, and Randy Arozarena and Harold Ramírez each had two hits.

Greene surrendered a leadoff double in the third before he was struck by Yandy Díaz's comebacker.

The 23-year-old right-hander stayed in after he was evaluated by a trainer and tossed a few warmup pitches.

But Greene, the No. 2 overall pick in the 2017 amateur draft, departed after the inning. He averaged 96.8 mph for 21 fastballs, down from a season average of 99.5 mph.

Greene, who started on opening day, was diagnosed with a right tibia contusion. X-rays were negative.

After Greene departed, Buck Farmer, Alex Young, Ian Gibaut (1-0) and Kevin Herget combined for six innings of five-hit ball.

Lowe homered in the ninth against Herget for Tampa Bay's only run in front of a crowd of just 7,375 at Great American Ball Park.

RAYS 10, REDS 0

Taylor Walls homered twice and drove in four runs and rookie right-hander Taj Bradley dazzled in his second start as the Tampa Bay Rays beat the host Cincinnati Reds 10-0 on Tuesday night.

Yandy Diaz hit a three-run homer, and Randy Arozarena also went deep as the Rays handed Reds lefty Nick Lodolo his first loss of the season.

Lodolo (2-1) allowed four earned runs combined in his first three starts, but gave up eight on Tuesday.

"He didn't have a good feel for his breaking ball from what I could tell," Reds manager David Bell said. "He doesn't have a ton of experience in this league. We've seen him be very good. There's no reason to believe he won't come back from this."
